- 24 months prevocational medical education and training (earliest year of entry is PGY3).

Application and selection process – how to apply

Selection to the FRANZCOG Training Program occurs annually. Prospective trainees need to apply to the College to be selected onto the FRANZCOG Training Program, and also need to apply for a position through the Queensland Health RMO Campaign to be issued an employment contract with their allocated facility.

Applicants accepted to the FRANZCOG Training Program cannot commence training unless they have obtained an accredited training position and prospective approval to undertake training in that position.

Map your Obstetrics & Gynaecology training pathway in Central Queensland

In Queensland, there are 5 Integrated Training Programs for Core Training: Mater Mothers' Hospital Program, Royal Brisbane & Women's Hospital Program, Gold Coast University Hospital Program, Mackay Provincial Integrated Training Program and Townsville Hospital Program.

Rockhampton Hospital forms part of The Townsville Hospital Program. The hospitals in this program include Bundaberg Hospital, Caboolture Hospital, Redcliffe Hospital, Rockhampton Hospital and The Townsville Hospital.

Unlike Core Training, Advanced Training is not confined to sites formally accredited by the College. Advanced training can be tailored to meet the needs and interests of the trainee and their aims will vary from trainee to trainee. Each trainee is required to submit a Learning Plan for prospective approval by the relevant Regional Training Accreditation Committee.

The following tables provide example pathways from internship through to fellowship in the Central Queensland region:

OBSTETRIC & GYNAECOLOGY TRAINING PROGRAM - EXAMPLE TOWNSVILLE HOSPITAL INTEGRATED TRAINING PROGRAM PATHWAY
